FINE ENTERTAINMENT

MESSRS. YHAMES AND ELWELL FEEL PROUD OF THEIR SUCCESS.

The dramatic entertainment given on Friday evening by the Maskulynes of Jamaica Plain in the Town Hall, was a unique and enjoyable affair. The "Kinder Symphonie" by Chwatal, "A Jolly Sleighride," consisting of the start, the dance and the return, was rendered by the following Arlington lovers of music: Miss Mabel Babson, conductor; piano, Miss Sprague and Mrs. Bullard; violins, 1st, Miss Johnson, Mr. Rice and Dr. King; Violins, 2d, Miss Helen Tat and Miss Churchill; flute, Mr. Perry; cornet, Mr. Foster; castanets, Miss Edna Pierce; combs and shells, Miss Yeames, Miss Gillet, Miss Mabel G. Veames and Miss Esther Babson; popguns, Mr. Maxwell Brooks, Mr. Harold Yeames. This jolly sleighride was so objectively illustrated by the artists taking part therein, that one could easily imagine himself with his best girl beside him, making his way in midwinter in the latest style of a cutter, well robed and thinking of nothing other than his fleet steeds and the particular "star" beside him. Miss Babson and those so ably assisting her received the enthusiastic applause of the audience.

"My Uncle's Will," a comedietta in one act, was another confirmation that "All is well that ends well." The actors in this little, but laughable comedy were Mr. Henry Goddard; who took the character of Charles Cashmore, Mr. Rupert Ridgway as Mr. Barker, and Mr. Charles Ogilby, Jr., as Florence Marigold. Charles Cashmore was deeply in love with Florence Marigold, and Florence was evidently in love with him, and the happy pair were to receive by the uncle's will $250,000 provided they married, and in case either one of the parties refused to have the knot tied, then the $250,000 was to go to the one jilted. If both refused to make their appearance before the bridal altar, then the money was to go to Mr. Barker. These two lovers had their little jealousies and quarrels and whenever Mr. Barker found the two at swords points, the better pleased was he, for he had his eye on "My Uncle's Will." But Florence and Charles loved each other all the better after their little spats, and finally as you would naturally expect, they married and Mr. Barker did not get the shining ducats. This trio of actors in the play deserve much for their natural way of doing things upon the stage. Mr. Charles Ogilby, Jr. as Florence Marigold, acted his or her part, whichever way you may put it, in a taking manner. The fact is he appeared so much like an attractive, bewitching girl just out of her teens that in spite of ourselves we came near falling in love with her and it provoked us to know that after all she was only a man. "A model lover" a comedy in two acts concluded the dramatic part of the entertainment. Mr. Rupert Ridgway represented Colonel Francis of the old school. Mr. Frank Deland was Professor Pelletier, Mr. Fredeack Nutman was Gustave Pelletier, son of the professor, Mr. Charles Ogilby Jr. was Leslie Francis niece of Colonel Francis, Mr. Walter Williams Bettie Trask, ward of Colonel Francis, Mr. Remsen Ogilby, Mrs. Babbit, housekeeper to Colonel Francis. After a series of mistakes and misunderstandings of the professor's Gustave, he comes to love and marry the niece, in accordance with the wishes of the father. The three men taking the characters belonging to the fairer sex acted their parts as perfectly as it was or is possible for a man to equal the ease and grace of a woman. For it must be acknowledged after all, that a man though he may have on and about him the robes of an angel, can never completely fill the bill of a graceful and charming woman. But the Jamaica boys came mighty near it. The music was by Nutter's orchestra to the inspiring notes of which came the mazy waltz and other dances from 10.30 to 12 o'clock. It should be said, and it must be said that the audience assembled for the entertainment was Arlington's best. Many of the young ladies were in evening dress while many of the young men and older-grown were in dress suits. The Maskulynes generously gave their time and services free of charge. They would not even allow the Rev. Mr. Yeames to pay their car fare. It may be said, however, by way of a partial explanation, that this dramatic troupe and Mr. Yeames are close personal friends, Mr. Yeames having been in former years a resident of Jamaica. To the Maskulynes we say come again and don't fail to bring with you Mrs. Babbitt, Leslie Francis and Bettie Trask.

CONDUCTOR M. S. DREW INJURED ON HIS CAR LAST SATURDAY

Last Saturday, on his return trip from Boston, Conductor Michael S. Drew met with a painful accident while opposite G. A. R. Hall. He was standing on the running board and had just rung in to have the car stopped, when he was seen to waver and fall, but all the time having hold of the post. It was found that a wooden horse, which had been placed in front of the new crossing being built at this point, had been shoved in so that it obtruded over on to the running board. He was struck just under the right knee, fracturing the bone. Two gentlemen assisted him on to the car and he was carried to the office of Dr. Keegan, being assisted by Chief Harriman and another gentleman. After having the knee bandaged, he was conveyed to his home on Southerland road in a hack belonging to Mr. George A. Law. It was also found that his shoulder was injured. The force of the blow is shown by the cut in his heavy new trousers worn. At the time of going to press Mr. Drew is doing as well as can be expected, although a very sick man and suffering great pain as well. Mr. Drew says this is his first injury since he entered the service nine years ago. These careless accidents could be avoided if proper caution was taken by those in charge of the street department. We trust this will be a lesson well learned and profited by in the future.

BRILLIANT CONCERT.

MRS. STEPHEN B. WOOD SUSTAINS HER HIGH REPUTATION.

The concert given in Pleasant Hall on Monday evening by Mrs. Stephen B. Wood, assisted by Miss Lillian G. Eddy, violinist, and Mr. Ray Finel, tenor, was an enjoyable, classical entertainment. Each of the trio of artists is a professional in the world of music. Mrs. Wood as a pianist excels in touch and expression. Her entire technique at the piano is one of rare ease and accomplishment. Her rendition of "Petit Roman pour le Piano en six chapitres" and "Theme Varie" was a brilliant feature of the evening. Miss Lillian G. Eddy brought out the nearest possible approach to the human voice upon the violin. Her solos upon this most perfect of instruments were replete with all that charm, which can only come from an intelligent appreciation of the very soul of music. The tenor, Mr. Ray Finel has a voice of exceeding culture and power. He sang with fine effect. Indeed it may be said of this musical entertainment, that it was the outcome of a critical training in the art of music. The programme was selected with that taste which is in keeping with all lovers of the "divine art." There were nearly a hundred in attendance. The ladies were gowned in evening dress, while the gentlemen were in swallow tails. It was indeed the toniest affair of the season. The program was

BOAT CLUB NOTES.

There will be a special meeting of the club on Monday evening to elect a secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Harry B. Emmons.

Joe is getting his boats into the water as rapidly as possible. They are in excellent condition.

Members are requested to wear the blue and white burgee on their white sweaters when entering into the sports.

Base-ball candidates are requested to report for practice on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

On Thursday evening teams 1 and 6, 3 and 4 tried their hands at the pins. The bowling was good, but teams 1 and 4 rather had the luck of being the winners as the score shows:

THE LILAC.

We always hail the coming of the fragrant lilac, for it tells of country life. It buds and blossoms in poor men's gardens. It is the pride and glory of the little bare foot boy and girl way back in the old red schoolhouse, far removed from the big, bustling city. We now seem to catch anew the delicious perfume of this Persian growth, as we recall District No. 4, up in Candia, N. H., where we boys and girls used to pile high the teacher's desk with this first bloom of the season. The lilac never fails to remind us of that outlying country school, where for so long a while we were a pupil, and of that teacher who was even more beautiful than the flowers we brought her. We once heard the Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer in one of his public addresses describe in a pathetic way his utter loneliness after landing in this country from his good old home in Devonshire, England, and never shall we forget with what emotion he told his audience how making his way on the road, friendless and alone, toward the big city, he came to a country house, in the garden of which was a generous lilac bush all in bloom, which so reminded him of the paternal home on the other side of the waters that he asked the lady of the house, who was standing in the doorway, if he might pluck a lilac from the heavily laden bush, to which the good woman responded: "Yes, my dear young man, help yourself." Whereupon, as Dr. Collyer tells it, he at once approached the bush, and buried his face in its wealth of bloom. "Ah," added the Rev. Dr., "the fragrance of that sweet flower on that homesick morning gave me new courage for the work before me, for it told of home and its tender and sacred associations." The lilac stretches back into the past, and so is evermore a reminder of days gone by. At this season of the year the air of the country is all redolent with the perfume of this flowering shrub. The boys and girls trudging along the country roadside to the little district school, with lilacs in profusion for their teacher, make up a rustic picture which gladdens the eye and softens the heart. Thank God for the lilac, say we; for it comes to poor and rich alike. It scatters its sweetness throughout an atmosphere that is for everybody. The lilac is for us all.

THE WHITEWASHING BUSINESS.

It is as clear as the day that the administration at Washington has gone into the whitewashing business in dead earnest. The fact is apparent to every unprejudiced mind that the game of politics is now being played at the national capital for all its worth, and the worst feature of the play is, that President McKinley is evidently leading the game. There has been a premeditated determination on the part of the administration to shield Secretary of War Alger from many of the just criticisms that have been made upon his management of the war department. The report of the Wade court concerning the embalmed beef and the canned beef has been fashioned to suit the powers that be. The court openly declares that there was no embalmed beef, and, further, that the only trouble with the canned beef was the fact that it was purchased in too large quantities for use in a tropical climate. The court acquits the packers of all blame, and declares that meats supplied by them for army use were the same in quality as those which they supply the public. It was this beef that Col. Roosevelt so emphatically condemned, when he said: "I regard the so-called canned roast beef as utterly unfit and an utterly unwholesome ration to be issued to troops. I wish to state most emphatically that my experience with my regiment at Santiago proved to me beyond the shadow of a doubt that the canned roast beef supplied to the United States soldiers was unpalatable, uneatable and unwholesome, and also that to the majority of the men under me it was not even satisfying; that it did not appease their hunger, but it made them sick." The American people will not accept a verdict so manifestly false. The findings of the court are both scandalous and outrageous. The National Democracy is having the best possible done for it by the administration at Washington, and if things continue at the national capital for the next few months as they have been going on for the past few months, then Bryan's chances as the successor of President McKinley will become excellent. Even the President of the United States cannot long dupe the American people. That Mr. McKinley's object in his executive rule is honest is not the point in question. We heard Wendell Phillips during the war make the startling announcement before a Boston audience that "honesty is the least essential quality for one to possess in time of a crisis." Then he illustrated his statement in the following way: "If when coming into port, the vessel were likely to become a wreck on account of the storm and the rocks, I should not care a fig if the captain were honest or not. The only query I should put would be this—has he the courage to face the storm, and the ability to safely get me ashore?" So it may be asked of President McKinley, right in face of his acknowledged honesty, has he the courage if need be to face public criticism, and run the "ship of state" into a safe harbor? The difficulty with Mr. McKinley is that he is weak-kneed, and wanting in backbone. He is too anxious to learn what other people think before he is willing to make a move. He gives in too often. For instance, the President at first insisted that the report of the court as finally made, should be modified and softened at certain points; but, as usual, he at last yielded, and out came the report in its present form. The cry is now being made by some of Mr. McKinley's cabinet that not a few here at the North are showing themselves hardly less than rebels because they unfavorably criticize our present aggressive warfare with the Philippines. But, in spite of what may be said in Washington, the American people, with their keen sense of justice, will continue to believe, as President McKinley believed a year ago, that an aggressive warfare for acquisition of territory is altogether unjustifiable and wicked. Now right on top of a war for empire, comes the findings of a court taking its shape and character from what has been pre-ordained in Washington.

President Lincoln was right when he said: "You can fool a part of the people all the time, and you can fool all the people a part of the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time." If Mr. Bryan will only keep his mouth closed on the 16 to 1 business, and shall show himself willing to stand upon a platform recognizing what is everlasting right and supremely just in all human government, then will he prove himself no weak candidate in the presidential campaign of 1900. Oh, for a Tom Reed or a Grover Cleveland in the executive chair!

DO YOUR OWN MARKETING.

Good woman, do your own marketing. Why not? Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., at present of Newport, does hers, and pray why shouldn't you do yours? Mrs. William K., Jr., in spite of her millions, and those of her husband, is a downright sensible woman. She evidently regards life in a practical way. To her, the three meals had daily in the average household, are a matter of no small importance. She knows and accepts the truth, that "society life" cannot feed and clothe one. And so it is that Mrs. Vanderbilt hustles off to market every day to make her own orders for the table. And, mind you, those orders must be filled exactly as given, both as to quality and quantity. When the purchases are received by her at the home, then she weighs for herself every article purchased, and if she finds that more of this, or that the other has been sent than ordered, then back goes the purchase. The merchants in Newport already understand that they can secure no trade from Mrs. Vanderbilt by feigning her servants. It is altogether commendable in Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., that she knows all the while just what is going on in the kitchen. The trouble with many a household in average life is that things go at loose ends because the servants have it all their own way, while the lady of the house is making or returning fashionable calls, or is present at some missionary meeting laboring in the interest of the poor heathen thousands of miles away. It is absolutely impossible to have for any length of time a happy home unless things go right in the cooking department. It sounds very prettily to talk of "angel cake" and the like, but after all that is said and done, what a man wants in this lower world of ours, is something to eat. An empty stomach never begets love. The affections can be more effectually reached by a good dinner. Mrs. Vanderbilt is surely in possession of that philosophy which is fundamental to all domestic happiness. She is wise in resolving so early in her married life that her millionaire husband, William K., Jr., shall have three square meals each day, and these, too, of her own selecting. Mrs. Vanderbilt is filling the scriptural injunction by "attending to the wants of her own household."

THE YEAR 1899.

The year 1899 will necessarily mark an epoch in the religious history of at least New England, if not that of the entire country. Who would have thought fifty years ago that the Old South Church in Boston would have at this date abandoned the Westminster or Calvinistic creed? How much we wish the fathers and mothers of the olden time could have lived in these more advanced days? How much intense anxiety they would have been saved! We now call to mind parents who fifty years ago followed the remains of this or that dear child to the grave without a ray of hope for his or her safety. They had been taught to believe that God was as much glorified in the damnation of souls as He was in their salvation. But hear what the Rev. Dr. Gordon of the Old South Church has to say of the newer revelation that has fortunately come upon us all. That you may hear him

we reproduce what he so well says: Here it is:

"The Westminster Confession of Faith, after the death of Cromwell and the restoration of Charles II. had to flee for its life. It had found the sphere of its influence in Scotland and America. Published in 1647, in England, it was adopted by a synod of elders and missionaries, and recommended to the churches in Boston in 1680, twenty years after it had expired in the community in which it originated. The churches have moved forward. They have moved so far that no sane disciple of Christ can read the gospel and say that the Westminster confession is a true interpretation of it. Puritanism through the high rigor and noble extravagance of its thought made the Kingdom of God inaccessible. It was too much for human nature to bear to exalt God so high and to sink man to such abysses. To be willing to be damned for the glory of God is more than man is equal to. Puritanism has no longer any vital relation to the educated mind. Indeed, it has become a mystery how able and good men could ever have believed in the Westminster or Calvinistic system. The confession declares that, by the decree of God, for the manifestation of his glory, some men and angels are predestined unto everlasting life, and others foreordained to everlasting death. Where was their sense of justice and humanity when they framed beliefs that contradict the consciences and hearts of mankind, and outrage every instinct of our nature? The answer to these questions is full of solemn warning to their descendants, for whom, should they continue to repeat the terrible blasphemy, there can be no valid excuse. Many who abuse the old theology are afraid of the full comfort of the new. Let the bewildered Christian take refuge in his ignorance. If he feels like rejecting the old thought of God's relation to mankind, and still cannot surrender to the new—because he does not know enough—let him hold on bravely to the comfort of his ignorance. In the name of his human heart, in the name of Christ's love, and in the name of his ignorance, let him refuse to repeat the Calvinistic blasphemy! Agnosticism upon the final mysteries of the universe is infinitely better than opinions that arraign the righteousness of the Most High.

But where did these good men get their idea of predestination? They got it from the Bible, and were in duty bound to believe it. Here was their argument in perfect syllogistic form: "Every verse in the Bible is true; there are many verses in the Bible that ascribe to God the decree of reprobation; therefore, reprobation is true." For the educated Christian of today it is a monstrous position, for it necessitates the revolting conclusion. The men who stand by the innerness or the infallible authority of scripture should also stand by the double predestination that goes with it. The lesson here is fundamental. God's love in Christ is the central fact in the New Testament. Christ's mission is to declare God's equal and eternal love for every human being he has made. The supreme meaning of the incarnation is the revelation and assurance of the absolute love of God. The words that go against this position—if there be such words—cannot be true reports, for our belief is that Jesus cannot contradict himself. The passages in the epistles that favor reprobation are remnants of alien thought."

It doesn't seem possible that there ever could have been a time in the history of the past that God could have been made the tyrant that He was supposed to be in those earlier days. And yet we remember all too well that up in New Hampshire it was taught from the pulpit when we were a boy that that individual who had died without making a public profession of his faith in strict accordance with the Westminster confession of faith, was sure to be doomed to hell-fire for all eternity. We now recall one of the earlier ministers of our youth, who on a public occasion made use of the following expression in prayer, namely: "We thank thee, O Lord, that there is a hell in which to punish the wicked." It is quite impossible for us to ever forget those periodical "revivals" to us so burdened with gloom and fear, which more or less frequently settled down on those otherwise happy neighborhoods way back in the country. It was at such times that an angry God and a yawning hell were especially set before the people, so that it is no wonder that those seasons of religious interest come over us, even now, as a hideous nightmare. Those Christian men and women in that earlier day were terribly in earnest, for they had even more to escape than they had to gain. In those days the cry was "an avenging God," while now it is "a merciful God." It is only in recent years that we have learned that God is good, and ever mindful of His children. It is He who has created us, and it logically follows that He will care for us. But the objector possibly may ask, "What! do you suppose God will save the entire human race?" Let the Rev. Dr. Gordon answer the query. The following is what he said in the pulpit of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, a little more a year ago, and we heard him say it: "Who is that man who will object if God shall ultimately save every intelligent creature of His make?" We are glad that the Old South Church in Boston has well rid itself of the Westminster confession of faith. The Rev. Dr. Gordon has now become a living apostle of the new revelation.

ODDS AND ENDS.

"Supposing the soldiers had a little beef spoiled, what of it?"

Messrs. McKinley, Alger, Armour & Co. are respectfully referred to the fall elections for an answer to this astounding conundrum proposed by "the best Secretary of War the world ever saw."

The Filipino army is sending large stores of grain into the mountains. This does not look like surrender.

There is no purpose anywhere in this country "to subjugate or reduce these Philippine islands to vassalage, or make their people slaves," says Secretary Long. True, and no anti-expansionist even of the most ultra type has ever made such a charge. No one ever charged George III. with a design "to subjugate" or to "reduce to vassalage" or enslave the people of the American Colonies. Such specious language as the above emanating from a man of the calibre and general equanimity of Mr. Long betrays a notable weakness in the cause he advocates.

"I second the motion," said the man on the rear end of the tandem.

"Those sandwiches remind me of my native town," said a man at the Union Station restaurant the other day. "Dead-ham"? asked the girl at the counter. "No; Needham."

Smith: "I hear that your mother-in-law is dangerously ill."

Jones: "She's ill; but not as dangerous as when she was well."

First Doctor: "Got back already from Arizona?" Second Doctor: "Yes; I don't like it out there?" "What's the matter?" "If you have a case of small-pox and don't report it to the Board of Health, you are fined and imprisoned. If you do report it, the relatives fill you with buckshot. I tell you it ain't a healthy country for a young doctor."

"I don't see you with that pretty girl so often as I used to."

"No; I'm married to her."

The following are some quaint epigrams found in country churchyards of the Nutmeg State:

"Our Thomas died when young and full of promise and whooping cough."

"Here lies the mother of children five. Of whom three are dead and two are alive. The three that are dead preferring rather To die with their mother than live with their father."

Her warfare is accomplished."

"Here lies the body of Axie Miller, Sound asleep upon her pillow. She was Alonzo Miller's wife; She raised the devil all her life."

The Baptist folks they tolled the bell To tell Old Nick she was coming to—, Old Nick he swore, and his lips did squall, "Don't let her in; she will kill us all."

To the transparent bluff that the Administration organs are now attempting to hoodwink the people with, in accusing those who testify to the rottenness of the canned beef of "befouling the reputation of this country," the New York World makes the following pertinent reply: "What would be the character—not to mention the reputation—of a country that permitted the poisoning of its soldiers with rotten beef to pass without inflicting or seeking to inflict any punishment upon the persons guilty of this heinous offence?"

In the early days of Harvard University a long established custom grew into an unwritten law, against the violation of which public opinion, and sometimes the civil law itself, was brought to bear. It was enacted at Harvard among other things that "No freshman shall wear his hat in the college yard, unless it rains, hails or snows, provided he be on foot, and have not both hands full." "No freshmen shall speak to a senior with his hat on." "All freshmen shall be obliged to go on an errand for any of his seniors, graduates or undergraduates, at any time, except in study hours."

Pope says
"The mouse that ever sticks to one poor hole,
Can never be a mouse of any soul."

So it is that the untravelled man, the man that scarcely ever gets beyond the confines of his own little town, becomes by force of habit inordinately selfish and conceited. He remembers the boy who thought his father's farm was the very finest piece of land in all the world—he knew it was better than any other place—"anybody could see it had the best location in all the world, for just you stand in front of father's door and look up and you would see it is right under the centre of Heaven."

According to the Young-Helmholtz Theory of Color, which is now universally accepted by scientists, there are, in the retina of the eye three distinct sets of nerves: one of which conveys the sensation of red, another the sensation of green, and the third a sensation of violet to the brain. We may call these nerves the red nerve, the green nerve, and the violet nerve. The sensations which they produce, i. e., red, green and violet, are called the three primary color sensations. By the combination of these three sensations in varying degrees of intensity, all known color sensations are produced. It has been found that a trained eye can distinguish ten thousand differences of color, comparatively few of which have received names.

Most people possess the three primary sensations above described, but about four per cent. of the male population lacks either the sensation of red or the sensation of green. Such people are said to be color blind, and they are spoken of as red blind or green blind accordingly. This peculiarity of vision is almost unknown among women. It is an organic deficiency which cannot be overcome or modified by training. Although the color sense of those individuals who have two instead of three primary color sensations is radically different from that of the remainder of the race, they learn in childhood to use the same color names as those who have normal vision, and often they go through life without knowing of the difference which exists between their sense of color and that of their neighbors.

Our High School pupil can receive no better object lesson on the doctrine of correlation and conservation of energy than that which may be obtained by a visit to an electrical light plant. Here in the first place he beholds the stored-up energy of coal (which he has learned in his class-room to be the energy of chemical separation) liberated in the form of heat, which is conveyed to the engine by means of steam. In the second place, he sees mechanical energy developed by that heat, and, through the mechanism of the engine, putting in motion shafts and pulleys which are connected with a dynamo, by which the mechanical energy developed is converted into electric energy. Thirdly, he sees the electric current conveyed to a series of lamps, and there disappearing, or rather being transformed into light and heat. The fourth step in the progress of this transmutation of energy is the brilliant electric light, scattering its energy abroad, and piercing the surrounding darkness with its penetrating rays; in other words it has now assumed identically the same form of energy, i. e., radiant energy, that it had when it was originally transmitted to the earth from the sun.

In this cycle of operations—this conservation and transformation of energy—not a single form of energy comes anywhere into existence without the disappearance of some other form. Heat is seen disappearing, and mechanical energy appearing in its stead; next mechanical energy disappears, and reappears in the form of electrical energy; which, in its turn, disappears only to reappear the next instant as light and heat. The conservation of energy is continuous and perfect. Nothing is lost, nothing gained in Nature's economy. If instruments should be applied capable of measuring the quantity of energy developed by the coal, and followed throughout all its changes until its final disappearance in the heat and light of the electric lamps, making due allowance for friction, resistance and leakage in its passage, not an iota of energy would be found to be lost. The great law of conservation of energy is perfect in its operation, and it is seldom that so rare an opportunity is offered for witnessing and studying this great economic law of nature as by a visit to this scientific workshop.

The first patent granted in America was that granted by the general court of Massachusetts in 1641 to Samuel Winslow for a process of making salt.

Since U. S. Grant, Jr., aspired to represent the state of California in the United States Congress on the strength of his father's reputation and patrimony, it is no longer necessary for him to write his name with the appendix of a junior, as the people have very kindly granted him the patronymic, MacGrant, (son of) Grant.

The case of Edwin N. Rand and Mary E. Rand, for violating the license law, came up in court last Saturday. The case was adjourned till today.

William Albert Clark of Mass. avenue is earning his money on the jury at East Cambridge. His jury had an all-night session on Tuesday.

Try some of Hardy's new cakes, which are on exhibition at his store. They look nice, and they taste just as nicely as they look.

Whoever you want a shave, or your hair trimmed in the very latest style, you will naturally call on T. M. Canniff, hair dresser, 943 Mass. ave.

Officer Cody is improving slowly under the skillful care of Dr. Chas. A. Keegan, and will, unless complications set in, be around again in the near future.

Mr. William Schouler of Pleasant street is driving a pair of handsome horses. They are well mated and have been greatly admired the past week.

The Girls' Friendly Society of St. John's parish meets in the parish house every Wednesday evening at 7.45. Young women are invited to join.

Dr. W. G. Cain who recently moved to this town from Cambridge has sold his beautiful Lee street residence in that City to Mr. Lawrence J. Ducey of Watertown.

Mr. Henry W. Bullard of Academy street, attended the musical given on Monday evening in the Congregational Church at Winchester, by the choir of that church.

Mr. J. J. Nolan has the young men under his direction now preparing for the minstrel show to be given in Town Hall, May 22, well in hand, and its success is assured.

Mr. William Burton Robinson of Academy street caught on Tuesday a big string of trout from the Sudbury brook in Concord. Many of them weighed a pound.

Miss Viola M. MacLellan of Winchester will have charge of the Eucharist service at the Congregational church, Sunday evening at 6.30. The topic is "God's Covenant and Ours."

The Arlington Enterprise not only circulates in this country, but it is read each week in England. The Enterprise is fast finding its way wherever intelligence has gained a foothold.

Mr. Atwood of the Rolbins Spring Hotel is simply rushing thing, so that the house may be open to the public on June 15th. But, then, Mr. Atwood is a hustler everywhere and at all times.

The regular Sunday services at St. John's Church are: Morning prayer and sermon at 10.30; even-song and sermon at 7 o'clock. The rector, Rev. James Yeames, will preach at both services to-morrow.

While playing the Impromptu, by Valentine Abt, Wednesday evening, Mr. Stackpole had the misfortune to break his pick in halves, but in spite of this accident he finished the piece in a very satisfactory way.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Welch of Beacon street took place Friday morning from St. Malachy's Church, Rev. J. M. Mulcahy officiating. The deceased was a very old resident of Arlington.

William H. Webber & Son ask that their customers order early for Saturday, as the wholesale stores in Boston close at 12 m. now on that day, so that by ordering early all orders can be filled promptly.

Supt. Buckley and his able assistants are putting St. Paul's cemetery in excellent shape, and by Memorial Day it will be in perfect order. We notice many new and costly monuments which have been erected lately.

The Enterprise extends its congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William E. Wood on their 25 years of happy married life. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were married May 7, 1874; so that last Sunday was the 25th anniversary of their nuptial hour.

The citizens should bear in mind that the grocery and provision stores close every evening (except Friday and Saturdays) after June 1, so try and make the storekeeper's lot an easy one by buying your goods early in the day.

Mr. Walter B. Henderson of Pleasant street place has rented his home for the summer months to a party from Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, with their children, are now settled in their delightful summer retreat in Wayland.

We watch with much interest the steady growth of George A. Law's lively stable business. George never allows anything to go undone which will be for the interest of his customers, and this is proof positive by the new boarders he is getting.

The Social Alliance is to hold its last literary meeting for the season on Monday evening in the parlors of the Unitarian Church, when the Rev. Mr. Gill pastor of the church will give an address on "Christian Science." A collation will be served.

There was a crowd of people at the upper Mystic Lake the greater part of Sunday, watching those in the boats grappling for the body of the young man drowned last week. The use of dynamite cartridges failed to bring the body to the surface.

Mrs. Edward Quimby of Laconia, N. H., formerly known in Arlington as Miss Lizzie Freeman, a daughter of Mr. Eugene Freeman, now of North Eastham, has been visiting family friends in this town. Mrs. Quimby is a graduate of our High school.

H. L. Frost & Co. will take care of your trees, rid them of canker worms, trim them, and leave them in first-class shape. They will also supply you with bedding plants at reasonable prices from their flower store in P. O. building. Just try them and be convinced.

Mr. Thomas P. Priest, who for the past twelve years has occupied one of Mr. Nolan's houses on Broadway moved into his own house on Whittemore street which he built four years ago, and has, until last week, been occupied by Mr. William B. James, who has moved out of town.

Remember, young man, that from now on your trousers are only to be creased from the knee down. President McKinley has just introduced this later style at Hot Springs, Virginia. The President has copied from an intimate French friend, who is authority on the latest fad in creases.

Do not forget that on or about June 1st that Peirce & Winn Co. will be ready to deal out and deliver to their many customers that coke of the New England Gas and Coke Co., used both for steam and domestic purposes. Peirce & Winn Co. are always to the front in their trade.

Mr. Harry Kaulbeck has very greatly improved his chances at Menotomy shore by erecting a lunch room along side his float, and it will greatly increase his business. Mr. Trask will have charge of the place in his absence, and all indications point to a good season. Good luck to you, Harry.

The Open Century Club is to have its first street run tomorrow (Sunday). It is to speed away to Newburyport and return. The following members of the Arlington Whist and Cycle Club are to participate in the outing: Frank Russell, Frank Powers, Cortland Dietrich and J. E. Langen. The club is to start from Copley square, Boston.

Mr. Winthrop Pattee, connected with the office of Henry W. Savage, has just sold for the estate of John P. Wyman a very desirable lot of land on the corner of Broadway and Palmer street. The lot contains 8532 square feet, and the purchaser, Mrs. Abbie P. Chase, intends to improve by erecting a thoroughly up to date double house.

Caldwell, the furniture dealer on Mystic street, has and is still having all he can do and even more than he can attend to. He is disposing of a large quantity of furniture, of which he has a large and varied stock. An extra number of men has been employed in the upholstery department. He is the man to try in this line.

There is evidently something wrong somewhere as regards the long stretch of crushed stone which has lain on the right side of Broadway for a year or more. It certainly was carried there at no small expense, and is now being carted away again. Is this one of the ways by which the street appropriation is eaten up? The taxpayers are now asking why was this done.

Camp 45, S. of V., received and accepted an invitation from Rev. James Yeames, at their meeting, Tuesday evening, to attend divine worship with Post 36 and Corps 43 at St. John's Church, the Sunday preceding Memorial Day. Capt. Geo. W. Knowlton desires as full ranks as possible on this day, and we trust the boys will give him their hearty support on this occasion.

At the Italian shanty on Decatur St. the sons of Sunny Italy had something of a racket on Sunday. During that part of the performance which was not down, Peter Jose assaulted with a plate a fellow Italian, for which he was arrested, together with the charge of drunkenness. For the assault Peter was fined $5, which was paid. The charge of drunkenness was placed on file.

Sunday the following arrests were made for drunkenness by Officer Leahy, Mary Gallagher of Somerville, case placed on file; by Officer Whittier, David O'Neill, fined $1, committed; by Officer Duffy, Thomas Stark, fined $1, paid; by Officer Hooley, Mary Hoyt of South Boston, case placed on file; by Officer Hooley, Charles Munroe, a tramp, committed to State Farm.

Mr. Ernest B. Brown, wife and son, of 16 Central street, have moved to Roslindale and will board with his brother for the summer. Mr. Brown is in hopes the change of air will be beneficial to his health and partially, at least, restore him to his former self. Mr. and Mrs. Brown carry with them the best wishes and good will of their neighbors and a wide circle of friends in Arlington.

A very interesting and instructive address was given at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening by Miss Cara M. Cushman, a returned missionary from China. Miss Cushman especially dwelt upon the condition of the women and girls of that country. The speaker portrayed so vividly China and her present condition, that the audience felt much as though years had been personally been spent there.

The Rev. Mr. Yeames attended on Wednesday afternoon the funeral of the two brothers, Charles J. Kummer Jr. and Robert Kummer, so recently drowned in the lower Mystic lake. The services were held in Grace Church in Medford. The older of the brothers, Charles J. Kummer, Jr., was clerk of the Parish, while the father, Mr. Charles J. Kummer, is a member of the vestry. A wealth of flowers were lovingly laid upon the caskets, and aside and on the graves.

Do not fail to read in this issue the two inch advertisement of Joseph W. Ronco, who well understands the latest cuts in hair dressing, and a shave that renders the face like that of a boy in his teens. Mr. Ronco has been in Arlington for many years, so that people have come to know his work. It is nothing other than a delight to sit in one of his easy chairs, while he delicately adjusts your locks, and makes over anew your face. Read his ad.

A call Wednesday morning on William T. Wood & Co., found Mr. Wm. E. Wood unusually busy in adjusting the accounts of the firm with agents in Boston, New York, Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul, Kansas City, St. Louis, Atlanta, Omaha, Denver and San Francisco. In addition to all this, he had correspondence on his desk from Hamburg, Germany, Christiania, Norway, Copenhagen, Denmark, and from Pretoria, South African Republic, awaiting his attention.

A brief call at the High School on Wednesday morning, found Mr. Holt the principal, hard at work as usual, and his able corps of teachers with their respective classes. Preparations are soon to begin for the graduation of the senior class, which occurs on June 22nd. The class to graduate is the first ninth grammar grade to enter the High school building. It is now proposed by the class to secure some speaker for the occasion, of educational note to address the graduates.

The "Maskulynes," who gave so successful an entertainment in the Town Hall, last evening, in the interests of St. John's, Arlington, are all prominent young men of St. John's parish, Jamaica Plain. They freely gave their valuable services, and brought with them a large party of friends from Jamaica Plain. The Rev. James Yeames and his family lived for six years in Jamaica Plain before coming to Arlington, and it is evident they are still held in remembrance and esteem.

Mrs. Henry D. Watson, formerly of this town, but who moved to Lynn, where Mr. Watson purchased a photographic studio, died last Friday morning very suddenly, probably of heart failure. Mrs. Watson's home was in Cohoes, N. Y. and her remains were taken there for interment Saturday. While here Mrs. Watson made friends rapidly and was a regular attendant of the Universalist church. The many friends of Mr. Watson here extend their heartfelt sympathy in his hour of bereavement.

We verily believe that the theology of the clergy may be known by the manner in which its members ride the wheel. Last week we had occasion to notice the perpendicular attitude of the Rev. Mr. Bushnell on the bicycle, and it is only a day or two ago that we saw the Rev. Dr. Stemberge of the Park Avenue Congregational Church making his 2.40 way on the wheel, with his eyes heavenward. We wish the average man and boy of the "wicked world" would follow the example of the pulpit, and so keep themselves in respectable and upright shape, whenever out on their cycling expedition.

The service at St. John's on Sunday morning last was especially impressive. The seven persons who were confirmed the previous Sunday by Bishop Lawrence made their first communion. The rector preached a practical sermon on "Equilateral Religion." He defined the three equal sides of the prism of true religion as piety, purity, philanthropy. The text was James I. 27: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." There was an excellent congregation. The attendance at St. John's is steadily increasing.

Fifteen members of the Arlington Whist and Cycle Club, all in their new uniforms, made their first regular run of the season on Sunday, covering the entire park system, a distance of 35 miles. Paced by Capt. James Underwood, and color bearer J. E. Langen, the following were those who made the run. Capt. Underwood, color bearer J. E. Langen, 1st Lieut. Frank Russell, 2nd Lieut. William Teed, J. W. Ronco, Frank Powell, Tom Millet, Warren Greenleaf, George Brooks, Herbert Rowe, Charles Wyman, H. A. Hunt, Herbert Cooke, Frank Eszen, and George Pierce. The run was a most enjoyable one and made without a single mishap. The next run of the club will be tomorrow to South Natick and return.

An enjoyable social was given by the Christian Endeavor Society on Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Congregational Church. The social committee had charge of the entertainment, Miss Nellie A. Lockhart, chairman. The following programme was rendered: piano solo, Miss Carrie Hillard; tenor solo, Dr. Clark; Miss Lockhart, accompanist; mandolin solo, Mr. Stackpole; Miss Law, accompanist. The drama was represented by Miss Maud Fisher, Miss Williams, Miss Canfield, Miss Bennett, Miss Jennie Gott, Miss Jennie Roden and Miss Evie Gott. The "Play" was acted in a realistic manner, all taking their parts in a natural way. Mandolin solo, Mr. Stackpole; tenor solo, Dr. Clark; piano solo, Miss Hillard. Refreshments were served during the evening. Mr. Stackpole and Dr. Clark were enthusiastically encored. Mr. Stackpole is very rapidly coming to front and being recognized among the musical world as a master in his line. The whole affair, entirely in charge of the ladies, was a success. There was a large attendance.

Headquarters Francis Gould Post 36, G. A. R. Arlington, May 6, 1899.

General Order No. 1.

Comrades of Post 36 will assemble at G. A. R. Hall at 7.30 a. m., in full uniform, with belts and white gloves; officers with side arms. The line will be formed on Mass. ave., opposite G. A. R. Hall, at 8 o'clock, when, escorted by Camp 45, Sons of Veterans, the Post will march via Mass. avenue and Pleasant street to the old cemetery where the graves of all soldiers there interred will be decorated.

The column will then return to the soldiers' monument, where appropriate services will be observed, at the conclusion of which the line of march will be resumed, via Mass. avenue and Medford street to Mount Pleasant cemetery, where the graves of our deceased comrades will be decorated, with special services at the soldiers' lot.

Returning to Medford street, the post and band will take carriages to St. Paul's cemetery, and after decorating graves of comrades buried there, will return to the G. A. R. Hall, then to "The Maples" to be again the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Nelson Blake until the hour of departure for Belmont.

Barges can be taken for Belmont by those desiring to ride and they will also provided for members of Woman's Relief Corps 43 and Associates.

At Belmont the usual appropriate exercises in memory of our dead will be observed at the memorial tablet, Town Hall, at the conclusion of which a banquet, provided by the citizens of Belmont, will be partaken of, followed by speaking by invited guests and others.

At 3.30 p. m., the column will reform and march to Arlington, concluding parade on green adjoining the First Parish (Unitarian) church on Mass. avenue.

Lunch will be served by Woman's Relief Corps 43 at G. A. R. Hall at 6 p. m.

The Post will reform at 7.30 and escorted by Camp 45, Sons of Veterans, march to Arlington Town Hall where evening exercises, to which the public are cordially invited, will commence at 8 o'clock and will include singing by a chorus of pupils from Arlington High School, and an address by Rev. E. M. Taylor. Members of Woman's Relief Corps 43, and Associates of Post 36 are invited to join in all exercises of the day.

Let every member of Post 36 be present and thus show remembrance and respect that is due to the memory of those of our comrades who have passed on to "Fame's eternal camping ground, the bivouac of the dead."

All soldiers and sailors residing in our vicinity, not members of our post, are cordially invited to join us in the services of the day.

FRANK MARDEN, Commander of Post 36, Dept. of Mass. G. A. R.

BELMONT.
 Miss Quigley, sister of Mr. Quigley,
 the efficient clerk in Mr. Adams' store,
 is temporarily assisting Town Treasurer
 Chenery in his multifarious duties.
 Mr. Quigley, to whom reference is made in the above paragraph, is confined to his room by illness.
 Mr. Winthrop Brown has purchased a valuable lot of the estate of Sarah Clark. Mr. Brown is to build during the present season on his new purchase.
 Mr. Joseph L. Frost is again back his accustomed place in the postoffice.
 Mr. Frost has been connected with the Belmont post office for thirty years or more.
 Mr. Gilcreas, the druggist, is now at Ayer Junction where he is rapidly recovering his usual health. Mr. Gil-creas has been ill since last Thanksgiving. Everybody in Belmont will be glad to see Mr. Gilcreas putting up prescriptions again.
 Mrs. Cutlew and Mrs. Elson gave the last of their series of dances on Wednesday evening in the Town Hall. Horn's orchestra furnished the music. The ladies attending were in evening-dress,
 while the gentlemen were in dress suits.
 The evening was an especially enjoyably
 one.
 Many of the pupils in our public school have been suffering from whooping cough. In some of the primary departments the number attending has been down to 20. The cough is now abating, and the boys and girls are getting back again to their respective classes.
 The base ball game on Wednesday,
 between the Belmont High School team
 and the 2d team of the English High School, Boston, was only won by the Boston team after the closest contest.
 The game finally stood—English High School, 22; Belmont High School, 19.
 The Belmont boys made twelve runs in the ninth inning.
 The Belmont Real Estate Block on
 Leonard street is nearing completion.
 It is now expected that the entire building or block will be ready for occupancy
 by the first of July. In this block there are to be eight stores, a Masonic hall,
 with ante-rooms, and a hall for general purposes. In the basement are to be two bowling alleys, with ante-rooms adjoining. The upper front of the block is being finished with Portland cement on wire metal. The management of this block is in the hands of five trustees, of which board Mr. Atkins is president. In the absence of Mr. Atkins, who has been in Cuba, Mr. J. G. Wellington has served as president pro tem.,
 and has had the entire superintendency of the building. This block is a substantial addition to the business portion of Belmont.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.
 Miss Elna Bridgman is the fortunate
 possessor of a new Crescent wheel.
 Mr. G. W. Perkins of Appleton street is gaining strength and renewed health.
 Mr. Nicoll, residing on Westminster avenue, is recovering from a severe attack of pleurisy.
 Dr. Stenbridge has rehited the house on Claremont avenue, owned and occupied, by Mr. Young.
 Mr. Angus G. McDonald is building an abutment against the embankment
 alongside his house.
 It was the Arlington Heights station which was burglarized last week and not Brattle station.
 Mr. Bateman of North Cambridge has moved into his most attractive new house on Robbins Spring Road.
 Marjory Bull, a girl 7 years of age,
 is at Mrs. Dwellley's home ill of scarlet fever. Marjory's mother is with her.
 Mr. Henry Loran will not tell why that beautiful bouquet of choice flowers was given him. So everybody is guessing.
 Owing to the scarlet fever in their home Grace Dwellley is a guest of Mrs.
 C. T. Parsons, and George Dwellley of Mrs. E. W. Lloyd.

A party of our young men went on Monday to Camp Crescent with hook
 and line well baited for the funny tribe.
 The boys got a good catch.
 "Have you seen the Enterprise?" is now the query among the young men of the Heights. Our young people surely know a good thing when they see it.
 The Baptist Church will hold services
 as usual in Crescent Hall Sunday, May 11, at 3 p. m. and at 7:30; Sunday School at 2:15. A. W. Lorimer will preach as usual.
 The new flag presented to the Locke School does not often do its duty. It should be wafted to the breeze at least every fine day. Let Old Glory be unfurled!
 The popular young man who drives
 the Purity Bakery wagon, Mr. W. C.
 Morrill, has an excellent picture of his team taken, with himself holding the "ribbons."
 Mr. Fleming and family of Oakland avenue have not removed to Dorchester as we had it in our last issue, they intended, however, to make their home
 there at no late date.
 Several young men in this locality had their pictures taken the other day in their go-to-meeting clothes. Any of our young ladies wishing to see samples of these pictures can do so by calling upon the artist. Don't all come at once.
 Everybody, that is every good housewife in this locality is cleaning house.
 So upset are our homes just at present,
 that the Sunshine Club could not find a convenient place for meeting this week, so its regular session was put over until next week.
 The sewer which is to run the whole length of Lowell place, connecting the main sewer on Lowell street, is to be 300 feet in length and of unusual depth.
 It will drain Lowell place and the surrounding low grounds in the immediate neighborhood. Nineteen men are now engaged on the work.
 The Hillside Literary Union held its regular meeting last Wednesday night in the Park Avenue Church. The following were elected officers of the Union. President, Frank B. Records;
 Vice-President, Herbert Peirce; Secretary and Treasurer, Edith Mann; Chairman of Social Committee, Mrs. H.
 Bean; Chairman of Topic Committee, Minot A. Bridgman. Dr. Stenbridge
 then read a paper on "A plea for Hobbies;" this was followed by general discussion.
 Mr. Thomas A. Jernegan of 177 Park avenue, is to start on his annual business trip to Independence, Iowa, and other points west, on Monday. Mr.
 Jernegan was formerly a business man in Independence, and one of its most prominent citizens. We well and pleasantly remember Mr. Jernegan in that live city of the "Massachusetts of the west" as we had for several years of his residence there, the superintendency
 of the public schools. Mr. Jernegan has still about him all the push and get-up of a live westerner.
 Mr. E. R. Whittier of the Purity Bakery is a New Hampshire man and familiar with every branch of his business. Although here but two months
 he has made many friends, and is already receiving a paying patronage.
 Mr. Whittier keeps everything in the bread and cake line, and he also has constantly on hand a variety of pastry.
 His bakery is kept in the neatest manner possible, and he deals in the best.
 The Arlington Heights people should give, as doubtless they will, Mr. Whittier their full patronage.
 The inquiry is being made at the Heights why it is that Mrs. Dean is not allowed to keep her place of business
 open of a Sunday, all day, as is the car station lunch room, the two drug stores and Mr. Kimball. Mrs. Dean keeps the news stand, and sells cigars, confectionery and a variety of cake. At present she is allowed to keep open of a Sunday until noon only, for the sale of her papers. Now why shouldn't she be allowed to keep open the whole day for

CRESCENT HILL CLUB.
 The final game of the whist tournament took place Thursday night. The score was as follows: Zwick, first, with a score of 42 points; Jukes, second, with 39; T. L. Kenney, 35; E. E. Lewis, 35;
 Kirchmeyer, 15.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES.
 The Woman's Club will meet on Thursday afternoon, May 18. Reception at 3 o'clock p. m. The club has voted $50 for the school picture fund,
 instead of $1.50 as reported last week.

Arlington Locals.
 Watch next week's Enterprise for the 17th of June bicycle race program.
 Mr. Henry D. Dodge writes home
 from California that himself and wife are having a delightful trip.
 On or about June first one of the stores in Mr. Sherburne's Building will be occupied and well stocked as a general variety store. Mr. Green was formerly in this line of business in Amesbury where he was successful, but sold out to take up the study of medicine with his brother here. Mr. Green is well known in Arlington and all wish him the best of success in his enterprise.
 Mr. John C. Waage has just completed the painting on Mr. Pattee's house on Jason street. The body color is a chocolate, and not a garnet, while the trimmings are cream, and green blinds.
 Mr. Pattee can rest assured he has a first-class job. Mr. Waage has also finished Mr. Howard W. Spurr's house on Mystic street, the body being cream color and trimmings of olive green.
 Edwin N. Kand and Mary E. Rand were fined $75 each, and appealed.
 As we go to press Chief of Police Harriman and his force are making a raid on the Arlington House Hotel. Liquors of various kinds have been found but beyond this fact nothing has been determined.

ODDS AND ENDS.
 "Deprive the young men from 21 to 40 years of age of the opportunity of indulgling in the reasonable hope that by due diligence they may attain individual advancement by going into some line of business on their own account,
 and you will destroy the esprit de corps
 of this country so essential to its continued progress, and in time paralysis will set in as it has heretofore in the republics of the past, and it will be first felt by the impoverishment of labor and those of moderate circumstances, in the end destroying the forced customers of the giant trusts, resulting incidentally in strangling the prosperity and happiness of a great people."—Judge Augustus Van Wyck.
 Lexicography in the United States
 dates from Noah Webster's Comprehensive Dictionary in 1806. A notable feature of this work was the recognition of words distinctly American, especially in the matter of pronunciation. Webster also proposed changes in the orthography of certain classes of words, all in the direction of simplicity and uniformity. Would that Websterian influence and reform might be further extended.
 The British Museum Library, the largest in the world, now contains 1,650,000 volumes. The sum expended annually for books and binding has been for many years $80,000. The Boston Public Library contains about 650-000 volumes. Harvard College Library contains about 450,000 volumes.
 The history of the Cambridge waterworks begins with the first charter
 granted to the Cambridge Aqueduct Company in April, 1837, to bring water from springs on what is now known as Spring Hill in Somerville. The water was brought in wooden logs.
 In 1884 Cambridge was granted the privilege of taking the waters of Stony Brook, which with its tributaries has a watershed of twenty-two square miles. Fresh Pond was ceded to the city of Cambridge by the Commonwealth in 1888. The pond contains 160 acres. This water area, together with adjoining land taken for the purpose of preserving the purity of the water, makes a fine water park of 330 acres.
